

12 Jan 2018 | Interviews

QUOTED. Jan. 12, 2018. Raymond Cohen.

by

Check out who Axonics Modulation Technologies CEO Raymond Cohen says would make up his dream team to take the company's technology from bench to market.

"First, I want an experienced operating person who understands the medical device business and can sell the vision to lead the company. Second, I want the most diligent and intelligent product development person who has a track record of solving complex technical problems and has access to a bench of engineering talent. Third, I want a subject matter expert who understands the clinical application perfectly. Fourth, I want the most creative regulatory professional who knows how to get things done. Fifth, I want an in-house intellectual property attorney on staff. Sixth, I want a clinical person who knows how to run clinical operations. And finally, I want a finance person who can do modeling and manage the finances." –Raymond Cohen, CEO, Axonics Modulation Technologies Inc.

> Find out more: Hindsight 20/20: Raymond Cohen

Click here for a free trial of Medtech Insight