

02 Jan 2019 | Analysis

QUOTED. Jan. 2, 2019. Anne Blackwood.

by

There are some significant bright spots for the UK medtech innovation system, but more work needs to be done with the National Health Service, says Anne Blackwood, who runs an organization that works collaboratively with NHS and device firms to accelerate medical advancements.

"There is no shortage of innovation or ideas, or of those people willing to help get innovations to market... [but] the pace of adoption in the NHS creates some particular challenges." – Anne Blackwood, chief executive, Health Enterprise East

- Find out more: UK Into 2019: Health-Tech Adoption Not Far From The 'Tipping Point'

Click hear for a free trial of Medtech Insight