

04 Jan 2019 | Analysis

Device Week, Jan. 4, 2019 – Reviewing A Record Year For M&A In Medtech

by Catherine Longworth

In this edition of Device Week, Medtech Insight's Catherine Longworth reviews the year in mergers and acquisitions, including big moves by Medtronic, Stryker and Boston Scientific. Looking forward to 2019, companies will be looking for acquisitions to help them take advantage of the emergence of Asia as the second-biggest device market, respond to Brexit, and potentially cope with new device regulations around the world.

Listen to the podcast via the player below:

Click here to explore this interactive content online ✎

Medtech Insight articles addressing topics discussed in this episode:

- *Boston Scientific's Drive To Add To Core Strength Continues With BTG Buy*
- *Major M&A Bookends Year Of Mainly Steady Growth For Leading Medtech Groups*
- *Stryker Makes Big Investment In Spine Surgery With \$1.4Bn K2M Acquisition*
- *Israel's Medtech Market Evolution: Seeking The Next Big Thing*
- *Deals and Financings*

For more information on Medtech Insight and to start a free trial, click here: <https://bit.ly/2LPIfkC>