At this month's Asian Medtech Associations' Regulatory Networking event, concerns were raised that the IVD industry may be facing a false sense of security given that the EU IVDR deadline is two years later than that for the MDR. See what Simon Richards, board member and former chair of the British In Vitro Diagnostics Association (BIVDA), said about it here.

“We will see a reduction generally across the industry in products that are supplied, going forward.” – Simon Richards, board member, British In Vitro Diagnostics Association
