Pakistan's health-care market is set to be unlocked when new medtech regulations are placed this year. See what Maham Ansari, director of regulatory affairs at Synaptive Medical, said about Pakistan's medtech regulations at the recent Knecht 365, Informa's MedTech Summit, here.

“But if you don’t file before that time, you will be locked out of the market. Companies could then have to wait up to three years for medical device approvals, with serious implications for business continuity.” – Maham Ansari, director regulatory affairs, Synaptive Medical
