

13 Mar 2020 | Analysis

Device Week, 13 March 2020 – Who Is Paying For COVID-19 Tests; How Is MDIC's Case For Quality Coming Along?

by Ferdous Al-Faruque

In this edition of Device Week, the weekly podcast from Medtech Insight, senior reporters Ferdous Al-Faruque, Sue Darcey and Elizabeth Orr discuss the US federal government's response to the coronavirus crisis, who will pay for COVID-19 tests, and how the Medical Device Innovation Consortium's work on Case for Quality is progressing.

Listen to the podcast via the player below:

Click here to explore this interactive content online ✎

Medtech Insight articles addressing topics discussed in this episode:

- US CMS Providing Medicaid Coverage For COVID-19 Tests, But Congressman Still Sees Gaps For Testing Working Poor
- \$8.3Bn Coronavirus Response Act Lays Out US FDA's, CDC's And Localities' Roles In Fighting Virus
- FDA's Case For Quality Head Explains The Agency's 2020 Maturity Model Pilot For Naughty Manufacturers
- What's In A Name? FDA To Rechristen Its Popular CMMI Maturity Model Appraisal Program This Year
- Chasing Quality Isn't Easy. But An FDA Pilot Aims To Boost Quality By Appraising The

Capability Of Manufacturing Sites