Amwell's CEO Roy Schoenberg said during the HLTH virtual conference he foresees a balance between in-patient and digital care with new technologies opening up a "new narrative" to reimagine health care. See what the telehealth company leader said about it here.

"I don't see physical disappearing. I think there is a comfort level of being seen, being touched, and of course there is a whole lot of medicine that cannot physically be done or safely be done through technology." – Roy Schoenberg, CEO, Amwell
